Re: Coinbase, Inc. v. Suski, et al., No. 23-3

Dear Mr. Harris:

I represent Respondents David Suski, Jaimee Martin, Jonas Calsbeek, and Thomas Maher in the above-referenced case. Pursuant to Rule 30.4, I write to request an extension of time for filing Respondents' brief on the merits ("Brief"), as well as Petitioner Coinbase, Inc.'s reply brief on the merits ("Reply").

Petitioner's opening brief on the merits is currently due by December 18, 2023. Consequently, under Rule 25, Respondents' default deadline for filing their merits Brief is January 17, 2024. And the default deadline for filing Petitioner's Reply is February 16, 2024 (unless the Court sets oral argument for earlier than February 26, 2024).

Respondents' current, thirty-day briefing period includes not only the Christmas and New Year holidays, but also a separate time during which I will be moving offices and transitioning into another law firm. I have conferred with Petitioner regarding these matters, and Petitioner does not oppose Respondents' request for the following, modified briefing schedule.

Respondents respectfully request that their merits Brief be due on or before January 31, 2024, and that Petitioner's Reply brief be due on or before March 4, 2024. This briefing schedule would facilitate the Court setting oral argument for any available date during March 2024.

Sincerely,

s/ David J. Harris, Jr.
